In other words, the wire when subjected to shearing stress suffers permanent deformation even though the stress is not equal to the elastic limit. This deformation causes a shift in the position of rest, so that as the pendulum passes from its new position of rest to its old position of rest, it does so at the expense of its own momentum and there is thus a loss of energy. This flow is entirely analogous to the flow of various plastic materials such as clay slip and paint, which we have already considered, when the shearing stress is less than the friction. Since the flow is of the nature of local slippage rather than true plastic flow, strains accumulate and they remain after the stress is removed. The result is the same as that observed by Trouton in pitch, in that the substance tends to creep slowly back toward its old position of rest during a period of time which in pitch is comparatively short but may be observed in metals for hours or even days. The elastic after effect has been the subject of exhaustive investigation by Weber (1835), Warburg (1869), Kohlrausch (1863-76), Boltzmann (1876), G. Wiedemann (1879), Pisati (1879), Streintz (1879), Rakkuk (1888), Wiechert (1889) and others. Kupffer (1860) was inclined to attribute this partial flow of the metal to what he would denominate the fluidity of solids in analogy to the fluidity of liquids. He...
